Establishing good oral care habits from the very first tooth

By Jordan

It is important that we take care of our teeth right from the very first tooth and establish good brushing habits.

Parents and children do not share the same motivation when it comes to choosing their toothbrush. Parents are concerned about safety and look for quality products that they think their children will like. As many as 45% of them buy “children’s personal care” products because their children are more excited about using them.2 Children are primarily motivated by fun (much more than health).3 Colors and design play an important role in making their brushing sessions positive. Older children especially are attracted to “new” features and functions that they would like to try.

In a recent consumer study,4 we found that parents appreciate information that will help them make good decisions when selecting a toothbrush for their child. In addition, parents welcome initiatives that will help them make good decisions when selecting a toothpaste for their child. In addition, parents wel-

To meet these needs, here are some good tips to remember when considering your next toothbrush for your child are:
- Choose a soft toothbrush. Children have softer enamel than adults do, and it is easy for them to brush too hard. A soft toothbrush is gentle and safe for children’s teeth and gums.
- Children need a small toothbrush head as their mouths are smaller and it is easier to navigate around the mouth with a smaller head. A small head makes it easier to reach and clean properly all the difficult areas in the mouth, especially the back molars when they start to develop. It is in these areas that cavities are most likely to start developing.
- Young children have less dexterity and motor skill development than adults do. It is easier for them to control their brushing movements with a handle that has more volume. Their hands are also much smaller than adults so are able to handle that will fit comfortably in their hands.
- Children should use a toothpaste that is formulated especially for them, and only a small amount is sufficient (a good rule of thumb is to think about the size of the nail on your child’s little finger and use a similar amount of toothpaste). Children’s toothpaste have a lower dosage of fluoride than adult toothpastes. Most children prefer milder toothpastes that are not “strong.” They tend to prefer other flavors like fruit-flavored toothpaste. Children should not swallow toothpaste.
- Parents are advised to brush their children’s teeth. In the Scandinavian countries, the National Dental Associations recommend balanced parental assisted brushing until children are around 10 years of age.
- Brushing the teeth for 2 minutes gives the best results. Brushing time is the most easily controlled parameter of effective everyday brushing. Increasing time from 45 seconds to 2 minutes will increase plaque removal and contribute to significantly improved oral health benefits.5
- In addition to brushing, the American Dental Association recommends that parents help their children “floss” as soon as two of their teeth touch each other. This can be as early as when they get their permanent back molars (from 6 years of age).
- To keep teeth clean and healthy it is recommended that both you and your children avoid in-between meal snacking and foods and drinks that can harm your teeth’s enamel. Try rinsing your mouth with water in between brushing sessions to help wash away food and help prevent plaque build-up. Finally, regular check-ups with your local dentist/hygienist will help you keep your teeth healthy.
