Editorial comment
Making a stand

Chief executive for the BDA, Peter Ward, spells it out loud and clear that ending the contract without any notice is no more than a ticking time bomb for the profession. It is a statement which sums it all up. As we sit here and wait for the outcome of this farcical appeal, like Dr Eddie Crouch to take on the big boys, but thank god there’s someone big and brave enough to do it. He signed the contract in dispute because how else could he continue NHS care without it? But instead of shutting up and getting on with it he’s making the right noises and making a stand. The BDA is there now lending support at a crucial time – a professional body showing its true colours not just to Dr Crouch but to the whole profession at last. But a ‘success’ for the Department of Health would cause ripples of destruction in the profession and crushing news for patients.

‘It takes guts for someone to take on the big boys, but thank god there’s someone out there brave enough to do it’

some of you out there are functioning on a low simmer. For the implications of the over rule could be catastrophic. Living on the edge is no fun for dentists or patients – the anxiety would seep through. And what’s the point of family dental practices making any future plans with the burden of a looming contract termination at any second? It takes guts for someone

Adequate rewards?

The NHS Information Centre highlights some pretty damning evidence. With 1.2m fewer people seeing an NHS dentist in the two years up to June this year things are certainly not looking up. But with an increase on treatments per patient what does this mean? Are dentists carrying out more treatments because they have to, and if so are they getting rewarded adequately? Last month one dentist told Dental Tribune he gets paid the same amount of money for doing either one filling or ten fillings. The report makes sense then doesn’t it, but that doesn’t mean that the profession is happy, especially when some of you have to pay back cash! The repercussions are obvious. NHS practices will leave in their droves.

As more dentists shun the NHS, more patients will be forced into private dentistry, but the lucky few who bag themselves an NHS dentist are getting their fillings in while they still can. At least there are some happy NHS patients in England.

Do you have an opinion or something to say on any Dental Tribune UK article? Or would you like to write your own opinion for our guest comment page?

If so don’t hesitate to write to: The Editor, Dental Tribune UK Ltd, 6th Floor, Treasure House, 19-21 Hatton Garden, London, EC2N 8RA.
Or email: penny@dentalttribuneuk.com

Periostat® contains 30mg doxycycline, a sub-antimicrobial dose.
Periostat® taken twice daily as support to SR inhibits the collagenases that attack and weaken tooth attachment structures and thus halts and can even reverse the disease process.1 What is more, being systemic, Periostat® treats the whole mouth in one go.

Dental Tribune United Kingdom Edition • December 8-14, 2008

News

Making a stand

Chief executive for the BDA, Peter Ward, spells it out loud and clear that ending the contract without any notice is no more than a ticking time bomb for the profession. It is a statement which sums it all up. As we sit here and wait for the outcome of this farcical appeal, like Dr Eddie Crouch to take on the big boys, but thank god there’s someone big and brave enough to do it. He signed the contract in dispute because how else could he continue NHS care without it? But instead of shutting up and getting on with it he’s making the right noises and making a stand. The BDA is there now lending support at a crucial time – a professional body showing its true colours not just to Dr Crouch but to the whole profession at last. But a ‘success’ for the Department of Health would cause ripples of destruction in the profession and crushing news for patients.

‘It takes guts for someone to take on the big boys, but thank god there’s someone out there brave enough to do it’

some of you out there are functioning on a low simmer. For the implications of the over rule could be catastrophic. Living on the edge is no fun for dentists or patients – the anxiety would seep through. And what’s the point of family dental practices making any future plans with the burden of a looming contract termination at any second? It takes guts for someone

Adequate rewards?

The NHS Information Centre highlights some pretty damning evidence. With 1.2m fewer people seeing an NHS dentist in the two years up to June this year things are certainly not looking up. But with an increase on treatments per patient what does this mean? Are dentists carrying out more treatments because they have to, and if so are they getting rewarded adequately? Last month one dentist told Dental Tribune he gets paid the same amount of money for doing either one filling or ten fillings. The report makes sense then doesn’t it, but that doesn’t mean that the profession is happy, especially when some of you have to pay back cash! The repercussions are obvious. NHS practices will leave in their droves.

As more dentists shun the NHS, more patients will be forced into private dentistry, but the lucky few who bag themselves an NHS dentist are getting their fillings in while they still can. At least there are some happy NHS patients in England.

Do you have an opinion or something to say on any Dental Tribune UK article? Or would you like to write your own opinion for our guest comment page?

If so don’t hesitate to write to: The Editor, Dental Tribune UK Ltd, 6th Floor, Treasure House, 19-21 Hatton Garden, London, EC2N 8RA.
Or email: penny@dentalttribuneuk.com

Periostat® contains 30mg doxycycline, a sub-antimicrobial dose.
Periostat® taken twice daily as support to SR inhibits the collagenases that attack and weaken tooth attachment structures and thus halts and can even reverse the disease process.1 What is more, being systemic, Periostat® treats the whole mouth in one go.