Philips also believes that scientific advances and clinical efficacy need to be balanced with consumer needs. This is evident in the introduction of a new-to-the-world charging technology—a glass and a USB travel case. Philips unleashed Sonicare DiamondClean, progressing sonic toothbrushing technology to new heights while leaving the gums unscathed.

In June 2008, Dr Greenwall launched the BDBS, which aims to lobby for changes in the dental sector to improve the experience of patients. The BDBS is an innovative and ambitious initiative, bringing together all sectors of the dental community. These companies are listed on the brand new “Partners” page on the BDA website to help achieve this goal.

Dr Linda Greenwall, Chair of the BDBS, said: “With 40% of patients considering a change of dentist in 2012, Dr Greenwall successfully reached number 12 in the Dental Times Top 100 in the same year. Dr Greenwall is a leading expert in restorative dentistry and runs an active private practice in Liverpool.

Dental practices in the UK spend £500 million per year on sundries—everything from sterilization equipment to clinical supplies. However, with the community going from strength to strength, there really is something for everyone with Dentinal Tubules. Visit the new Partners page today to see what the dental world has to offer.
