Reducing the day of dentistry
Unfortunately this year our patients have an increased number of those who need a helping hand to crack a smile again. The dates are the 10th -12th November 2011, in the London’s Edwardian. This is the return of the hugely popular Annual BACD Conference. So mark the dates for your diary. Don’t forget HMT 01-05.

BACD Protocol: Improving patient treatment
In order to assist their members in every aspect of their work, the British Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry provides a number of dental protocols. When it comes to attaining and maintaining a high level of patient satisfaction, there is in the form of comprehensive series of patient consent forms and consent forms. These forms help to ensure that all patients are aware of the proposed approach to treatment planning and can consent appropriately. With the use of the BACD protocols, practitioners can be confident that these will be compliant and that any consent options available to them. By making patients aware of the purpose and nature of the treatment, the likely outcomes and risks, the possible alternatives and their costs, clinicians can gain valid consent.

When the entire process of consent is fully documented and carried out in a manner that is clearly comprehensible to both patients and practitioners, patient satisfaction is considerably higher.

EdenCare enhancing easy patient pain
Dental phobia is common fear experienced by many patients and can lead to an increased perception of pain during treatment. Knowing that real care and attention pain can be avoided and the experience in the chair can be made a pleasant one.

The newly experienced and empathetic team at EdenCare works hard to prove to your patients that endodontic treatment need not be something to be feared.

Patients referred to us are all fully informed as to what they can expect during treatment, how we alleviate their fears and what they can expect to happen. By making patients aware of the purpose and nature of the treatment, the likely outcomes and risks, the possible alternatives and their costs, clinicians can gain valid consent.

When the entire process of consent is fully documented and carried out in a manner that is clearly comprehensible to both patients and practitioners, patient satisfaction is considerably higher.
