The treatment centre you’re looking for...
DENTAL NEWS, 20-year search to find an excellent, value-for-money manufacturer of new dental equipment uncovered the DENOND Treatment Centre range. DCC and the CIC Guideline updates recommend that impressions are always soaked immediately after removal from the mouth. PracticSafe Soak needs only three minutes to disinfect bacteria, fungi and viruses. This disinfectant concentrate is dispensed from the container with a required volume to make a three per cent solution, e.g. for 1 litre soak, 30 ml should be dispensed.

Don’t Just Drift into a Break
“Many NHS dentists who at this time of the year already know that they will be unable to deliver UDA’s within the four per cent tolerance would do well to consider approaching the PCT for a temporary UDA target reduction” warns special dental selector Alexander Hall of BDS King LLP “PCPs have in recent years become increasingly aggressive in sensing breach and in turning down UDA’s at their target within the four per cent allowed. “The first strike in the two strikes and you will be out of effect of the CIC is now in place. Some potential buyers are more keen to buy in such circumstances.” Rather than pay large sums to recover them later by clawback for underperformance, PCPs tend to prefer this approach as long as there is sufficient time in the year left to subsidise the funds to contractors who need them, have delivered their UDA’s for the year and could deliver more. “It is best though if the contractor has a genuine reason for the current underperformance, that reason is a one-off and will not cause on-going problems, otherwise PCPs may be tempted to suggest a permanent target reduction.”
