Turn your good practice into a great one – part three
Jacqui Goss continues with your journey toward practice perfection!

A ttention dentists, hygienists and all other wet finger operatives. Imagine if you will that you have no appointment system. People turn up when they feel like it and bang repeatedly on the door of your treatment room, regardless of how busy you are. As more people arrive they also start banging on the door. When you let one of them in you discover they’re not a patient and you have no notes on them. Nevertheless they sit themselves in your chair and demand attention. They may be there for five minutes or half an hour. Meanwhile, the banging on the door is getting louder...

A nightmare scenario? Noon… just a typical working day for a receptionist through the prism of being a dentist. For front of house staff, answering the phone is just one of their many routine tasks yet the way they do it and what they say can significantly affect practice profits. I’m amazed that some practices spend time and money attracting potential patients (read part two to find out how) and then don’t ‘close the deal’ by overlooking the training and on-going development of their reception staff.

I’ve been on both ends of the telephone. Practice owners employ me to play the role of potential new patients to assess how well the telephone is answered. As extreme examples, reception staff can be ‘captured spies’ – persistent questioning is required to elicit any information – or they can be ‘monologues’ – they emit a continuous stream of words, often repeating themselves rather than pausing for breath!

I exaggerate for effect, not to imply criticism. Answering the phone in a practice is hard work. I’ve done it when clients have been suddenly left short-handed and judged it as akin to running a mental marathon with the added hazard of random hurdles to jump through. Oh, and the occasional wayward mobile ‘banana’ to trip over. The problem comes when somebody answers the telephone in this way 10, 20, 50 times a day. Before the week is out they’re answering: “G’morning. Sunny Smiles Dental Practice. Jacqui speaking and I can help you”.

Okay, let’s start considering what mistakes can be made when answering the telephone and how they can be avoided. The usual advice is to first confirm the business name and then identify yourself (I’m making up the names): “Good morning. Sunny Smiles Dental Practice. Jacqui speaking and I can help you”.

People turn up when they feel like it and bang repeatedly on the door of your treatment room, regardless of how busy you are. As more people arrive they also start banging on the door. When you let one of them in you discover they’re not a patient and you have no notes on them. Nevertheless they sit themselves in your chair and demand attention. They may be there for five minutes or half an hour. Meanwhile, the banging on the door is getting louder...

Attention dentists, hygienists and all other wet finger operatives. Imagine if you will that you have no appointment system. People turn up when they feel like it and bang repeatedly on the door of your treatment room, regardless of how busy you are. As more people arrive they also start banging on the door. When you let one of them in you discover they’re not a patient and you have no notes on them. Nevertheless they sit themselves in your chair and demand attention. They may be there for five minutes or half an hour. Meanwhile, the banging on the door is getting louder...

As a humorous diversion, older readers may recall the Morecambe and Wise sketch ‘Morny Stannit’. Eric plays a street newspaper seller who repeatedly calls out the name of the newspaper – “Morning Standard” over time having become “Morny Stannit”. Incidentally, the Morny Stannit is now available online: http://mornystannit.info

The caller is either obliged to ask that this be repeated or they carry on without having... properly heard what was said. The tendency to speak rapidly (sometimes in a frenzied way) is called pressured speech. In other circumstances, it can be a symptom of certain mental health conditions such as schizophrenia. I won’t get sucked into the whole world of psycholinguistics but I can tell you that it’s a topic which has evoked considerable study – not least by Heidi Biggenbach from California who has written several books on the subject.

There are accepted rates of speech, measured as words per minute (wpm). Fewer than 110wpm is slow whereas conversational speech is somewhere around 150wpm or more (some experts say 180-200wpm is ideal, others consider this fast). There are free audiobooks available via the Internet (www.booksshouldbefree.com is one website) and these can help you gauge a rate of speech that can be readily understood. You can also find rate of speech tests – Lisa R. Marshall, host and creator of The Public Speaker podcast, offers one here: http://www.lisamarshall.com/unscategorized/how-fast-do-i-speak.

Bear in mind that research has shown older people tend to perform more poorly (although there can be considerable variation) when speech is deliberately speeded up.

There are four key things to remember:
• The speed of answering should be slower than normal conversation
• It should be a ‘smiley’ greeting

Ways of giving a ‘smiley’ greeting to callers on the telephone include:
• Speaking clearly and naturally and perhaps with a deeper tone of voice; and
• Using simple phrases such as “Good morning, Sunny Smiles Dental Practice”.

Friday 10th-Sunday 12th May 2013 – 21 hours CPD – Course Fee £1099*

3 Day Aesthetic & Restorative Masterclass
Day 1 Shape, Shade and Colour; Day 2: Smile Design – Creating the Perfect Smile; Day 3: Aesthetic Indirect Restorations. Preparations will be cut on the latest state-of-the-art phantom heads, which will then be scanned and assessed using the latest 3D CAD teaching software and hardware.

Tuesday 14th May 2013 – 6 hours CPD – Course Fee £275*

Gorgeous Gums
Develop an understanding of current concepts in the management of soft tissue defects, the biological principal and evidence supporting various techniques. Hands-on surgical element covering soft tissue grafting techniques on animal jaws.

Thursday 13th June 2013 – 6 hours CPD – Course Fee £175*

An MI Approach to the Management of Tooth Wear in General Dental Practice
Restorative management protocols for predictable clinical outcomes. Developing an understanding of the latest technology in dental adhesive materials and the principles behind simple care planning of tooth wear cases; Discussion of tooth wear cases and treatment planning options.

Thursday 11th July 2013 – 3 hours CPD – Course Fee £50*

CDTs, Therapists and Hygienists Role in Oral Medicine
This lecture will provide an overview of the common oral medicine conditions seen in general dental practice, including: Management of dry mouth, burning mouth and altered taste; Recognising and managing white lesions, red lesions and premalignant lesions.

Saturday 13th July 2013 – 6 hours CPD - Course Fee £349*

Immediate Veneers – Direct Options and other minimally invasive techniques to restore smiles
An opportunity to learn about three different methods to restore teeth and create new smiles using minimally invasive composite materials in three formats. The day will consist of seminars and hands-on to cover smile design, treatment options and direct composite, indirect composite and pre-fabricated veneers.

*Please contact us to take advantage of our limited early bird course fees.

All courses include refreshments, lunch and CPD certificate.

For further details and to book a place please visit: www.londec.co.uk
Alternatively, please call or email: 0207 848 4570 / info@londec.co.uk
Looking for a suitable venue to deliver first-rate postgraduate dental training? Or for a meeting or conference? LonDEC is a flexible space that adapts to meet your needs. Contact us to find out how we can help you.

www.londec.co.uk

Ways of giving a ‘smiley’ greeting to callers on the telephone include:
• Speaking clearly and naturally and perhaps with a deeper tone of voice; and
• Using simple phrases such as “Good morning, Sunny Smiles Dental Practice”.

Finally, how does your answerphone message sound to callers? Check for clarity, background noise, pace of speech and good intonation.

Why have I used most of this article concentrating on just the first few seconds of a telephone call? It’s because those first seconds are critical – it is oft quoted that research shows that people form first impressions of others in just a very few seconds. Unfortunately, I can’t refer you to specific research to verify this. I can, however, give you a great reading recommendation. It’s Drop the Pink Elephant by Broadcasting Business Managing Director, Bill McFarlan. The book is about ways to speak to people without getting them focused on the opposite of what you are saying. Eg if someone says: “Don’t think about a pink elephant,” then of course, that is exactly what you think about. So, if you say: “Don’t worry, we are really good with nervous patients,” all the patient hears is that they should worry!