Walking among giants
Marketing dentistry in the global connected economy
By Chris Barrow, UK

In an information-rich world, the wealth of information means a dearth of something else: a scarcity of whatever it is that information consumes. What information consumes is rather obvious: it consumes the attention of its recipients. Hence a wealth of information creates a poverty of attention. Those prophetic lines were shared by Nobel laureate and social scientist Dr. Herbert Simon in 1971. It seems incredible to think that his words predate the Internet by decades. Perhaps it is time to do the same with Homo Sapiens.

Walking among giants
Marketing dentistry in the global connected economy
By Chris Barrow, UK

In an information-rich world, the wealth of information means a dearth of something else: a scarcity of whatever it is that information consumes. What information consumes is rather obvious: it consumes the attention of its recipients. Hence a wealth of information creates a poverty of attention. Those prophetic lines were shared by Nobel laureate and social scientist Dr. Herbert Simon in 1971. It seems incredible to think that his words predate the Internet by decades. Perhaps it is time to do the same with Homo Sapiens.

Walking among giants
Marketing dentistry in the global connected economy
By Chris Barrow, UK

In an information-rich world, the wealth of information means a dearth of something else: a scarcity of whatever it is that information consumes. What information consumes is rather obvious: it consumes the attention of its recipients. Hence a wealth of information creates a poverty of attention. Those prophetic lines were shared by Nobel laureate and social scientist Dr. Herbert Simon in 1971. It seems incredible to think that his words predate the Internet by decades. Perhaps it is time to do the same with Homo Sapiens.

Walking among giants
Marketing dentistry in the global connected economy
By Chris Barrow, UK

In an information-rich world, the wealth of information means a dearth of something else: a scarcity of whatever it is that information consumes. What information consumes is rather obvious: it consumes the attention of its recipients. Hence a wealth of information creates a poverty of attention. Those prophetic lines were shared by Nobel laureate and social scientist Dr. Herbert Simon in 1971. It seems incredible to think that his words predate the Internet by decades. Perhaps it is time to do the same with Homo Sapiens.
I have given you nine marketing actions designed especially for the smaller business. Actions that should be avoided by the independent dental practice are seeking to gain attention by paying through the nose for Google or Facebook advertising, broadcasting non-human interest material or selling services on price, discount or special offer. This is because every week I hear from dentists and their marketing teams that advertising to strangers, using jargon and cutting prices at best attract nobody and at worst attract bargain-hunters, price-shoppers and misers.

“A wealth of information creates a poverty of attention.” We end where we began. The challenge is for the mouse to gain attention without competing with the bull elephants. You can only do that by stepping away from the herd of elephants and delivering your story in a different way and a different place. For me, that means human interest, personal service and recommendation, and so when I am working with clients on their marketing plans, we focus on and mobilise their most valuable asset: the goodwill of their existing patients.